

	ters a safe, functional and effective environment for residents, staff, and er individuals in the organization ers disaster preparedness guidelines to identify and mitigate risks that all impact resident care, treatment, and services dresses ability to establish and verify staff qualifications, provide training I resources and evaluate staff competence and performance lines the activities necessary to establish and operate an effective ection prevention and control program dresses how the provider obtains, manages, protects, and uses ormation to provide, coordinate, and integrate services views the structure and relationships that impact a culture of safety and ality and operational performance of staff Cov	vers requirements for ongoing maintenance of building safety

